Updated PCOS guidelines

The Australian PCOS Alliance published the first international evidence-based guideline for the assessment and management of PCOS in 2011, using a rigorous approach incorporating consumer participation and considered judgment of 31 expert clinicians and researchers from PCOS relevant disciplines. The guideline is endorsed by the National Health and Medical Research Council in Australia (<http://www.managingpcos.org.au/pcos-evidence-based-guidelines>), has been commended internationally by the NIH and incorporated into the NICE guidelines in the UK and now by the WHO.

The Alliance now has an NHMRC Centre for Research Excellence on PCOS which will expand and extend the guidelines to become the international guideline in PCOS. In the interim in response to a recent publication of a large scale, high quality trial, we have updated the section of the guideline relating to the use of aromatase inhibitors. Until now, use of aromatase inhibitors has been a controversial topic and they have not been recommended for ovulation induction in women with PCOS, given uncertainty of the evidence. Incorporating new evidence into our meta-analysis and rigorous guideline process we now propose their use, with consideration of the individual patient and situation (<http://www.managingpcos.org.au/pcos-evidence-based-guidelines>). Under the auspices of the Centre for Research Excellence in PCOS, we are in the initial stages of a full update and expansion with a Delphi process conducted to identify additional clinical priority areas where guidance is needed. We anticipate completion of the updated guideline in 2017 with a parallel program of translation underway.

Medicines for the treatment of treatment of radioactive iodine refractory differentiated thyroid cancer

The Pharmaceutical Benefits Advisory Committee (PBAC) sought views from the Endocrine Society of Australia on the treatment of differentiated thyroid cancer on the Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme (PBS).

Thank you to ESA members John Walsh, Peter Fuller and Warrick Inder for their contribution.

Women in Endocrine Cancer Special issue

Endocrine-Related Cancer is celebrating mid-career female researchers working in the field of endocrine cancer. The journal is seeking nominations of inspirational women doing exceptional and/or ground-breaking work in their field. We want to know how women are innovating and changing the landscape of hormones and cancer research and advocacy. The most outstanding nominees will be selected by an expert reviewer panel to appear in a special issue of the journal and will be invited to write a review which either focuses on an aspect of their recent work or a topic of interest to them. The selected candidates will also be asked to provide a short profile article detailing their background and career path.

Issue Editors:

Charis Eng (Cleveland Clinic, Genomic Medicine Institute, US)

Deborah Marsh (Kolling Institute of Medical Research, University of Sydney, Australia)

Panel Members:

V Craig Jordan (MD Anderson Cancer Center, US)

Marc Lippman (University of Miami Miller School of Medicine, US)

Shuk-Mei Ho (University of Cincinnati, College of Medicine, US)

Elaine A Ostrander (National Human Genome Research Institute, US)

To nominate a candidate, please submit a letter outlining your nominees' work and achievements (no more than 1000 words) by e-mail to erc@bioscientifica.com. The nomination must also include a second letter of support from an established researcher in the candidate's field, as well as the candidate's CV. Queries regarding eligibility of candidate nominees can be made to the Endocrine-Related Cancer office at erc@bioscientifica.com. All nominations should be submitted by 31 December 2015.

Andrology Symposium

"Improving Men's Health - Research Horizons in Andrology"

Monash Medical Centre, Clayton, Victoria

Saturday 28th November 2015, 8:30 – 5:00 pm

This is an initiative of the DFG-funded PhD training program joint between Monash University, Melbourne and Justus-Liebig University in Giessen, Germany, with the title "Molecular Pathogenesis of Male Reproductive Disorders".

This one day Symposium follows on from our annual scientific review and is intended to draw together our National and International colleagues who will collectively provide an update on clinical and basic research in Andrology. This will be a unique opportunity for a day of discussion of the Andrology field and how we might find way to move the field forward in the future.

Registration is free (<http://goo.gl/forms/4c06zElyvW>) and there will be an opportunity for students to present their data in poster format within the program.

Please accept this invitation to attend the 2016 ESA Clinical Weekend to be held at the Crowne Plaza Hotel, Surfers Paradise 19th - 21st August 2016. The Clinical Weekend is always an informative and instructive meeting held in a relaxed environment. 2016 promises to be all that we expect from the meeting.

This year's venue will provide you with plenty of opportunity to enjoy all that the Gold Coast has to offer. Our new tram stops right out the front of the hotel and provides easy access to Broadbeach and the Convention Centre precinct as well as north to Surfers Paradise and Southport. Don't miss this great meeting.

The Annual Scientific Meeting of the Endocrine Society of Australia and the Society for Reproductive Biology will be expanded in 2016 and held with the Australian and New Zealand Bone and Mineral Society at the popular venue - the Gold Coast Convention Centre from 21-24 August.

The programme organising committee will consist of members from all three societies and will endeavour to present you with the latest and most exciting data from these respective fields with a range of international and national leading speakers.

The benefits of this large scale collaborative meeting include: broader content areas, efficiency in meeting attendance and costs for delegates and trade partners, a more diverse variety of sessions, increase attendees.

Trade partners will have exposure to more areas of specialties in Endocrinology, including these three societies and the Australian Diabetes Society (ADS) and the Australian Diabetes Educators Association (ADEA) meeting on the Wednesday of that week.

The three societies share areas of common interest and offer expertise and diversity across the field of endocrinology.

We hope to see you on the Gold Coast!
